Nurse Jackie tells the story of a painkiller-addicted nurse, whose daily life forms the backbone of this dark comedy. The pilot script is a fantastic example of a comedy that focuses on characters in difficult situations who must make life-or-death decisions, without losing sight of the humanity in its leads.

Jackie - Screenplay. Written by Noah Oppenheim, Jackie isn't just a biopic—the film is an intimate character study of the former First Lady. Jackie never wanted the spotlight, and the script plays with this internal conflict, depicting her as a woman torn between being a grieving widow and, to quote the movie, the “mother” to all Americans.

Nurse Jackie was created by Liz Brixius, Linda Wallem, and Evan Dunsky. Brixius and Wallem served as showrunners for the first four seasons and shared executive producer duties with Caryn Mandabach and John Melfi.

Nurse Jackie - Wikipedia

Part saint, part sinner, Nurse Jackie is never less than totally compelling. Trailing Jackie's every move (much to her dismay) is overly earnest, perky nursing student Zoey Barkow (Merritt Weaver). Luckily, Jackie can take reprieve from her besotted young acolyte and her problems with the rest of her hospital family.

Pilot Scripts Writing a pilot is one of the toughest things a TV scribe can do. It's your first episode, so you have to introduce your central character and core cast, build enough of your show's world without overwhelming the audience with backstory, create an episode "template," and communicate the show's tone.
